SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27th, 1862

Congress—Deputies.

The session of yesterday was animated, and well attended, Two new Deputies were admitted from Cordoba, and the petition of Sor. Rams, touching the Salado navigation, was called on before proceeding to the order of the day. The Minister of Government ably recommended the project, expatiating on the enthusiastic zeal of Mr. Rams who has sunk a large fortune in his great plan of opening up the trade of Santiago, Salta &c. by canalizing and making navigable the rivers Salado and Dulce. The concession of privilege, granted by the Paraná Congress of 1856, consists of a guarantee of 9 p% on the outlay, which is not to exceed 1,200,000 $ silver; also a cession of 20 leagues on the bank of the Salado, and 2 lots of ground in Rosario & Sta Fé, respectively 200 and 100 square yards for the storage of goods by such river-transit, the monopoly whereof is granted to Sor. Rams under a certain tariff. The necessary capital is offered by a high Parisian contractor, on condition of prolonging the concession 3 years, and limiting the point of navigation to Matará, instead of Miraflor, for the verification of the guarantee. The Mint stated that the benefits, to accrue from the success of this enterprise, would far out-weigh any consideration of interest guaranteed, and concluded by comparing the concessionaire to Christopher Columbus, in seeking to develop and bring to light a new world.

After various observations by Sor. Marmol and others to the effect that this country was greatly indebted to Mr. Rams who was ably assisted by the Government Engineer, Mr. Coghlan, in his explorations, the Minister called the attention of the house to Com. Page's flattering account of the Salado territory, and requested the acceptance of the project which was accordingly passed by unanimity.

The 4 millions Parana Bonds were about to be called on, when, Dr. Montes de Oca presented a project to the effect that the debt of Buenos Aires should be funded, like the floating debt, into Government Bonds. He added that this was a sacred obligation, having been contracted in the cause of Liberty. Great discussion ensued, some wishing to follow the order of the day, others calling for a debate on the new motion. At length the new project was put to the vote, and passed to committee. Señor Gorosteaga refused to consider it, as the Finance committee had already too many irons in the fire, and the Paraná Bonds had been sanctioned 6 days ago. Hereupon Sor Moreno proposed the Chamber should elect a special committee, but was overruled by 21 votes against 14. The Pres. Dr Obligado, then proceeded to nominate Messrs Marmol, Cantilo Gutierrez, Elizalde and J. A. Garcia as special commission; some murmurs were heard, 'they are all B. Ayrean deputies,' but others exclaimed 'we are all Argentines" and Sor. Moreno sarcastically laughed at the remark. The Chamber then rose.

The late Dictator Lopez.

The second ruler of Paraguay has been gathered to his fathers and fame is already busy with the recital of his deeds. Yet few will justly appreciate this extraordinary man, since his worshippers hold him as a demi-god while his enemies deny him the smallest merit, or mental endowment. If we study the circumstances in which he was placed, we shall find less to condemn, and more to admire, than is generally supposed of this tyrant.

The independence of Paraguay dates from 1811, and in the past half century no nation has ever been submitted to such grinding despotism as this republic. Gaspar Francia seized absolute power in 1814, and at once inaugurated the most terrible sway, excluding all foreign intercourse, and keeping the simple Paraguayans in mysterious awe of his wonderful learning and sacred person. The lawyer-despot had educated in the Jesuit college of Cordoba, and there acquired some of those abstruse sciences which, with his bloody severity, helped to enthral the Helots of the New World. During 26 years, he reigned undisturbed except by his own guilty remorse, inflicting death or captivity or all who ventured to pass the limits of his territory. Bonpland the botanist, and many other distinguished foreigners, experienced the vengeance of this Christian Sultan. At length, Death came to release Paraguay from the tyrant, and on Xmas Day 1840 Gaspar Francia expired at the ripe age of 76 years.

Philanthropy might rejoice that the "reign of terror" was at an end, and the Republic now free to enjoy its institutions. Yet so true it is men are slaves to a mere name, that the Paraguayans, instead of remodelling their institutions, hastened to perpetuate the blind despotism which is a chronic feature of their country, by delivering themselves over to the capricious rule of Carlos Antonio Lopez, who proved in some manner a counter-part of his predecessor. Since that time, Paraguay has made rapid advances in civilization. The late Dictator, far from abusing his power, turned it to excellent account; he sent several young men to Europe, to study arms, arts, sciences, trades &c.: he founded arsenals, built steamers, opened a railway, diffused education and stimulated agriculture. To give an example to his people, he despatched his son D. Francisco Lopez on a tour of Europe, that he might bring back ideas of progress, and useful experience to the country which he was destined one day to govern and instruct. It is objected that the late despot fettered commerce and abolished the liberty of the subject, and the quarrel with the American Co. and monopoly of yerba establish the first assertion, while the second is notorious, and faithfully depicted in Com. Page's Travels. But it must be, also, confessed that he fostered the native wealth of Paraguay, by making the exports exceed the imports, and attaching inseparably the products and landed property to the country. The end will not justify the means; yet we gladly perceive the splendid results of an era of tyranny, and would regret that the new Dictatorship should be exchanged for the vaunted liberty of a Federal Republic.

Carlos Antonio Lopez has decidedly done much for Paraguay; he has further preached an impressive lesson to other South American republics, by shewing that undisturbed despotism may push forward a nation to wealth, influence, and prosperity; while the Liberty begotten of civil wars, and stained with blood, is a curse equally fatal as the vengeance of a Tamerlane, or the proscription of a Sylla. The tyrant of Asuncion has left a well organised army and navy, a host of European improvements, a peaceful people, and a son [to carry out so wise a programme] whose mind has been opened by foreign travel, and whose reputation as a public man is not insignificant.

Deceased had never been out of Paraguay; he was in his 58th year, and possessed much cunning and penetration. He was corpulent in figure, of sinister aspect, haughty, jealous of foreigners and fond of military display. Com. Page describes his wife and daughters as pleasing, intelligent and fond of dancing. D. Francisco Solano Lopez, our mediator after the battle of Pavon is unmarried, and just in the prime of life. His aide-de-camp Col. O'Neill is an Irishman and a great favorite at Court according to Com. Page.

New Banking Rules.

The moment has now arrived when it is politic, nay, necessary, to call public attention to the "Casa de Moneda" in this city. Hitherto, when writing on this subject, we have confined ourselves to the demonstration of losses which the great fluctuation of the paper currency was entailing on us all, but now we feel it incumbent upon us, as the public organ of ¾th of the depositors in this institution, to animadvert, in the strongest language, upon the arbitrary rule passed the other day, in reference to specie deposit by bankers.

A private bank may make, no doubt, what rules and regulations the owners may deem fit, provided always that such rules are not of a retrospective character; but a public bank, strictly public in every sense of the word, we apprehend has no such privilege, on the contrary, due notice must be given, through all the public journals, of any change in the rate of interest or regulations: were it otherwise, a public bank, would cease to be a convenience and the whole system of banking an absuadity.

The "Casa de Monedá", or public bank in Buenos Aires, has recently passed a law, whereby no banker hence forth can deposit specie on interest. We have looked through all the native papers to see if such law or regulation has been duly published, and cannot find it. In the "Standard", this extraordinary bank never advertises, although we are informed that the largest specie depositors are English, and, every one of them, subscribers to our paper. We must set our face against such proceedings in a public institution. We must tell this bank that this extraordinary privacy in public matters is altogether unnecessary, and that we deny their right to pass any such law, without first giving sufficient notice to depositors. If such things as this tolerated why, perhaps, to-morrow, or next day, we shall hear that the Bank has passed a law, whereby all sheep-farmers, deposits will henceforth bear no interest.

It may be that the bank has a right to accept and refuse whatever deposits they think fit, but we confess, if this is the case, it is only in Buenos Aires such a rule exists. A public savings or deposit bank is obliged to take deposits from every one, at their published rate of interest, and to refuse would render them liable to be immediately wound up. Here however it is different: a certain tariff or list should therefore be made out, so that the public can see their way. We would suggest, therefore, that the following regulations be passed at the next meeting.

Resolved, that money is very abundant, and good signatures are scarce; that times are woefully changed of late; and that rumours are afloat about a new English bank coming amongst us. Be it therefore enacted, that on & after to morrow, no deposits or business transactions of any kind be tolerated with the following persons.

News-paper editors; who have the courage to cry down abuses.

Friends of the new bank, either directly or indirectly.

Sheep farmers who read the "Standard", &c

Italian Opera Company.—In your valuable journal of 20th instant I observe a communication signed Solo, containing some well merited eulogiums on our lovely countrywoman Miss. Altieri, particularly elicitated by the additional attraction she offered by singing the beautiful aria The Last Rose of Summer. Following his example, I cannot refrain from shortly alluding to the representative of the opera "Un Ballo de Maschera" on Sunday night last, in which she played such a conspicuous part. The Novelty of this opera has drawn full houses, which has induced the company to repeat it for the third time, to-night, as a farewell previous to their departure for your City.

Parodi, Giovanelli, Rossi and Walter executed their respective parts very successfuly, eliciting frequent applauses. Parodi once more displaying that extreme vocal agility for which she is favorably known.

Mazzi was in great force, and gave immense delight by his superlative delivery of the many fine airs throughout this truly beautiful opera, more especially of the barcarolle in the second act, completely vindicating the unfair criticisms of the native press which were evidently actuated more by ulterior motives, [i. e. Oriental repugnance to double prices] than any alleged artistic incompetency.

Altieri, was the star of the evening, and the success she achieved, appearing as she did in the character of page appropriately attired, can be easily imagined. Such bewitching beauty, grace, buoyant demeanour and coquettish airs, have been hitherto unrivalled on our stage. Her tight pantaloons, created quite a sensation, causing a perfect din amongst the goddesses of the classic Cazuela, the ladies in the boxes and the densely crowded pit By Jove what legs! audibly soliloquized an enthusiastic Yankee—pardon the expression Mr. Editor, never the less it is true, putting aside affected modesty.

She sustained her part throughout, admirably, and sung several passages of the illustrious composer's music, in a manner well calculated to gratify the ear of the most punctilious connoisseur.

This performance may fairly be set down as the most remarkable with which the company have proved us.

Cricket Club.—A match is talked of between our lately instituted Club and the Squadron, but an adverse result is prognosticated to the former, by those whom Burns styles the "Uncogude and rigidly righteous", from the fact of some of the members having violated the 3rd Commandment (?) [or 4th as the Protestants perversely have it] by committing the unpardonable sin of practising last Sunday week.

A chosen few have received their justly merited reprimand, from the proper quarter, and have it is said promised to be good boys in future.

We however for our part, repudiate such antiquated and bigoted ideas, and disregard any clerical interference in the affairs of an association of such an unsectarian character.

The question between the Civil and Ecclesiastical authorities is in statu quo, but it is expected will be arranged by reinstating both Vicar and Curate in their respective offices.

In reference to the grievance of which your Mercedes correspondent complains, may I remark "en passant" that I think a little management on the part of the sheep-farmers would remove a great many difficulties. In other parts of the world the employers generally arrange a fixed price in such matters, it has "union in strength" They carry on their business smoothly' I do not see what is to prevent the Irishmen here putting their heads together to regulate the price for their respective districts, and not allow themselves to be wheedled by shearers whilst they are quite abundant. Last season may have been an exception. But yet the shearers did not know what price to ask. However, they got what they wished and afterwards presented you with a list of comestibles for the "comida" which would almost exhaust the shelves of an almacen I happen to know that they will be even more exorbitant this year. Thus by a little unity and timely consulta, tion a great deal of annoyance may be avoided.

Yours truly,

Veritas.

The decline in specie is attributable to the settlement of the capital question, and the probability of the re-appointment of Sr Riestra to the Finance department; but this cannot be regarded as the only cause as it was well known on 'change yester day, that the Bank has been doing a losing business for some time back, in taking specie deposits, owing to the impossibility of investment, and that, before long, the hoarded treasures of the Bank would find their way to the street. Besides, the period is now approaching when paper money will be in demand, to pay the farmers for their wool. The general feeling, therefore, is that ounces will no maintain their present figure.

The amount of exchange taken on England and the continent is perfectly enormous this month. We learn that over £150,000 has been drawn. When we take into account the limited character of both our imports and exports, it seems unaccountably strange that the amount should be so large. We heard of a transaction, yesterday morning, to the extent of £35,000 on England, at 65s 3d

Money is at present very abundant, but this arises more from the stagnation of trade than any extra healthy tone in our monetary affairs. There is no demand for either specie or paper, and the loan brokers greedily look after third, and even fourth-class, paper to keep their business going at all.

Anacleto Ferrer.

EDITION FRANCAISE.

Septembre 27--1862.

Revue Politique de la Quinzaine.

Cette quinzaine n'a pas été fertile en événemens importans, mais nous pouvons cependant la recapituler avec une certaine satisfaction et deduire tous les avantages que ce laps de temps nous a apportés.

La question de la Capitale qui préoccupe á si juste titre tous les esprits et qu'il importe pour la tranquilité et la securité publiques, de voir régler dans un sens favorable á l'unification de la Nation, a fait un pas notable et semble enfin toucher á une solution, qui toute provisoire qu'elle est, ne nous laisse pas moins le temps de respirer.

Sept projets ont été présentés tour á tour, lesquels, débattus et discutés dans les quatre chambres, par oú elles doivent fatalement passer, sont venus expirer sous les coups de l'opposition qu'ils ont rencontrée. Une transaction a enfin eu lieu entre les partis et un dernier projet présenté cette fois par la Chambre des Députes Provinciale, c'est á dire émanant du point même oú l'hostilité était la plus grande, a été adopté par les deux Chambres Provinciales. Ce projet dont nous donnons le texte dans notre précédent numéro écarte la fédéralization de la Province, mais établit le siége du Gouvernement National á Buenos Aires en lui conférant la juridiction sur tout le municipe de la ville. Quoique les Chambres Provinciales puissent fixer leur résidence dans cette même cité, cependant leur autorité ne s'étend que sur la province hors des murs de la capitale. Les Etablissemens publics tels que la Banque, la Monnaie etc., seront toujours sous la dépendance du Peuvoir Provincial. Quoique dans ces dispositions, il y ait encore prise á bien des conflits entre les deux Pouvoies, cependant nous devons reconnaitre que cette solution est un bienfait. Personne ne doute que le Gouvernement n'appuie ce projet auprés du Congrès et que cette Assemblée ne le sanctionnée en dernier ressort. Les Onces qui avaient montré une tendance á la hausse ont baissé devant cette manifestation des sentimens pacifiques et modérés des partis et nous les voyons de nouveau revenir á un coors moins anormal, quoique le prix de 412 soit encore déplorablement élevé.

On a beaucoup parlé d'une Banque Anglaise, qui se serait formée avec un capital d'une douzaine de millions de francs, mais il est difficile de prédire le sort qui l'attend. Les Anglais sont pourtant trop habiles pour entreprendre une affaire aussi colossale sans avoir des données rassurantes. Certains négociants prétendent pourtant que cet établissement ne pourra trouver l'emploi de fonds aussi considerables.

Plusieurs projets importants ont reçu un commencement d'exécution, depuis le départ du dernier Packet. La Commission des finances a recommandé au Sénat, la prise en considération d'une mesure qui assurerait la canalisation d'une partie du Rio Salado de Sta. Fé et la navigation á vapeur de cefleuve, au moyen d'une aide que le Gouvernement passerait avec une Compagnie formée á cet effet.

Une autre ligne établie entre Bs. Aires et Patagones, Bahia Blanca, met en communication ces cotes lointaines avec le capitale de la Confédération ; elle recevra dit-on les encouragemens du Gouvernement sous la forme d'un subside.

Une loi a été proposée au Congrés par Mr. Cullen qui autoriserait le Gouvernsment a passer des contrats avec les immigrants,qui apposteraient a ces régions le concours de leur activité et de leur experience. Chaque famille recevait uneconcesion de 20 cuadras (1) de terrain dont quatre années d'exploitation les rendraient propriétaires.

Nous savons que de son coté, le Gouvernement provincial de Santa Fe se propose de pousser avec vigueur a la régénération compléte de cette province, au moyen de l'introduction d'émigrés laboureurs. Ll est question d'une contrat passe avec une société de Francfort, qui se chargerait d'introduire 10,000 familles allemandes, auxquelles el serait alloué quatre lieues carrées par chaque colonie de 400 familles. Cette mesure aurait des effets incalculables pour le bien du pays. Nous serons sous peu munis de documens officiels qui nous permettront de donner nos a compatriotes en France la description des avantages que cette province peut leur offrir et des chances de succés qu'ils trouveraient á tenter la fortune dans cette partie de l'Amérique. (A continuer.)

CORRESPONDANCE.

Cour d'appel de Bruxelles.

Deuxiéme chambre.—Présidence de M. Tielemans.

CONSIGNATION. — PARTICIPATION. — REFUS D'ACCEPTATION. — FAILLITE. RESPONSABILITE. — DOMMAGES-INTERETS.

L'associé participant qui s'est obligé á revétir de son acceptation les traites tracées par son coassocié, en réglement de marchandises á expédier ultérieurement, est tenu de remplir cette obligation quelle que soit la baisse survenue sur le prix de ces marchandises.

Il en est de même du consignataire qui a promis d'accepter les traites fournies sur lui á titre d'avances sur marchandises á lui expédier.

Le refus d'acceptation donne droit á des dommages-intéréts au profit de l'expéditeur ou de l'associé en participation.

Si le refus d'acceptation entraine la faillite du tireur, le tiré reste responsable des dommages envers le failli concordataire, et n'est pas fondé á prétendre que le préjudice a été souffert par les créanciers de celui-ci.

[E. VON SEUTTER G. ET C. KREGLINGER.]

Conclusion

Qu'á Buenos-Ayres, le credit dont Von Seutteur y jouissait, s'était maintenu parfaitement intact jusqu'en mai 1858, époque de sa suspension de paiement, ce qu'Albert Kreglinger reconnaissait lui même;

"Attendu que Von Seutteur ne se trouvant pas en état de faillite au temps du refus d'acceptation des traites du 31 décembre, l'association en participation entre lui et la maison Kreglinger n'avait pas cessé par lá de subsister alors, non plus que l'obligation pour les intimés d'accepter les dites traites;

Attendu que des documents versés au procés il résulte que la nécessité pour Von Seutter de déposer son bilan est due au refus d'acceptation du sieur Kreglinger;

Que sa chute comme conséquence inévitable de ce refus, avait été prévue par les maisons du Havre et de Londres;

"Que les intimés eux-mêmes n'avaient pas été sans s'y attendre, puisque, disaient-ils le 7 janvier 1858, c'était le désespoir dans l'ame qu'il avaient pris la résolution de refuser l'acceptation de toutes les traites

"Qu'enfin les négociants de Buenos-Ayres ne lui donnent pas d'autre cause;

"Attendu qu'on ne saurait admettre avec la partie intimée que le résultat eût été le même si la maison Kreglinger avait accepté, et que Von Seutter serait, un peu plus tard, nécessairement tombé sous le coup d'une faillite;

"Attendu, en effet, qu'il n'est pas douteux que si la maison d'Anvers avait fait acte d'acceptation, les sieurs Iselin et Ricketts auraient accepté également, non pas pour abandonner ensuite Von Seutteur, cet homme dont on recherchait avec empressement leo services et la cooperation, mais au contraire ou le soutenir DE TOUS LEURS MOYENS;

"Que pour apprécier ce qu'il aurait pu devenir dans la situation qu'on suppose, il faut considérer d'abord, qu'aprés avoir été forcé de déposer son bilan, l'appelant paie á ses créanciers 30 p. c. comptant et 10 p. c. en janvier 1859, soit 40 p. c. d'un passif de plus de 1,200,000 fr.; c'est-á-dire qu'au peu de temps il effectue des paiements pour une somme de 500,000 fr. environ;

"Que de plus, et malgré tout le désavantage d'une liquidation forcée qui s'opéra dans les circonstances les plus défavorables, il s'acquitte integralement envers la maison de Kreglinger, et finit même par rester son creancier, et par la faire condamner a lui payer une solde de compte;

"Que si les intimés avaient accepté, Von Seutter, qui ne eut plus alors été obligé de faire face immédiatement a des engagements considérables, aurait pu successivement couvrir ces traits et par les contre-valeurs qu'il avait envoyées et par les envois de fonds et par les expéditions de produits qu'il faisait et qu'il aurait continuées;

"Qu'enfin l'affaiblissement de la crise financiére qui se manifestait déja dés le mois de janvier 1858; la confiance qui devait bientôt renaitre, par cela même, dans les transactions commerciales, et la bienveillance des maisons Iselin et Ricketts et Ce auraient permis aux appelants de se livrer á de nouvelles opérations fructueuses et á faire honneur á leurs obligations vis-a-vis des trois seules maisons d'Europe avec lesquelles ils étaient en rapport;

"Attendu qu'il suit de toutes les considerations qui précédent que les intimes sont responsables envers la maison Von Seutter et Cie, des consequences dommageables du refus qu'ils ont fait, en décembre 1857, d'accepter les traites tirées sur eux pour compte 3[3, le 31 octobre de la même année;

"Attendu que la maison donnee aux arbitres par le jugement qui les a nommés étant limitée á l'examen et a la décision de la demande introductive dans ses seuls rapports avec les opérations sociales ou en participation ayant existé entre parties il n'y a pas lieu de rechercher si á tort ou á raison les intimés ont refusé leur acceptation aux traites tracées le même jour pour compte de consignation;

"Sur la fin de non-recevoir tirée de la circonstance que les appelants auraient laissé passer plus d'un an sans réclamation en justice, et de ce que lors de la réunion des créanciers á Buenos Ayres, ils n'auraient fait á ce sujet aucune réserve;

"Attendu qu'aucun des deux faits sur lesquels cette fin de non-recevoir est basée, n'inplique nécessairement l'abandon de la prétention des sieurs Von Seutteur et Cie que loin que l'on puisse inférer de leur silence l'intention de renoncer á leurs droits les documents du procés établissent que dés 3 mars 1858. c'est á-dire le surlendemain du dépôt de leur bilan, les appelants faisaient savoir á la maison Kreglinger d'Anvers, que son refus á leurs traites les avait obligés á suspendre paiement:

"Que le 26 mai suivant, ils disaient á la même maison, á propos de son refus d'acceptation, que c'était un point sur lequel ils revendraient en d'autres occasions; et qu'enfin le 26 septembre suivant, ils lui reprochaient de les sacrifier sans misericorde.

"Attendu que ce langage qui accuse nettement la pensée d'avoir raison du refus d'acceptation des traites, démontre combien la fin de non-recevoir est dénuée de fondement;

"Attendu, quant aux dommages intérets en eux mêmes, que les parties ne s'en sont pas suffisamment expliquées pour que la cour puisse dés á présent rendre á cet égard une décision quelconque;

"Qu'il échet donc de reprendre le débat sur ce point;

LES

PAR

VICTOR HUGO.

(Suite.)

Il alla á la cheminée, prit deux flambeaux d'argent et les apporta a Jean Valjean. Les deux femmes le regardaient faire sans un mot, sans un geste, sans un regard qui pût déranger l'évêque.

Jean Valjean tremblait de tous ses membres. Il prit les deux chandeliers machinalment et d'un air égaré.

—Maintenant, dit levêque, allez en paix.—A propos, quand vous reviendrez mon ami, il est inutile de passer par le jardin. Vous pourrez toujours entrer et sortir par la porte de la rue. Elle n'est fermée qu'au loquet jour et nuit

Puis se tournant vers la gendarmerie.

—Messieurs, vous pouvez vous retirer.

Les gendarmes s'éloignérent.

Jean Valjean etait comme un homme qui va s'évanouir.

L'évêque s'approcha de lui, et lui dit á voix basse:

N'oubliez pas, n'oubliez jamais que vous m'avez promis d'employer cet argent á devenir honnête homme.

Jean Valjean, qui n'avait aucun souvenir d'avoir rien promis, resta interdit. L'évêque avait appuyé sur ces paroles en les prononçant. Il reprit avec solennité.

—Jean Valjean, mon frere, vous n'appartenez plus au mal, mais au bien. C'est votre ame que je vous achéte; je la retire aux pensées noires et á l'esprit de perdition, et je la donne á Dieu.

XIII

Petit Gervais.

Jean Valjean sortit de la ville comme s'il s'échappait Il se mit á marcher en toute hâte dans les champs, prenant les chemins et les sentiers qui se présentaient. sans s'apercevoir qu'il revenait á chaque instant sur ses pas. Il erra ainsi toute la matinée, n'ayant pas mangé et n'ayant pas faim. Il était en proie á une foule de sensations nouvelles. Il se sentait une sorte de colére; il ne savait contre qui. Il n'eût pu dire s'il était touché ou humilié. Il lui venait par moments un attendrissement étrange qu'il combattait et auquel il opposait l'endurcissement de ses vingt derniéres années. Cet état le fatiguait. Il voyait avec inquétude s'ébranler au dedans de lui l'espéce de calme affreux que l'injustice de son malheur lui avait donné. Il se demandait qu'est-ce qui remplacerait cela. Parfois il eût vraiment mieux aimé étre en prison avec les gendarmes, et que les choses ne se fussent point passées ainsi; cela l'eût moins agité. Bien que la saison fut assez avancée, il y avait encore çà et lá dans les haies quelques fleurs tardives dont l'odeur, qu'il traversait en marchant, lui rappelait des souvenirs d'enfance. Ces souvenirs lui étaient presque insupportables, tant il avait longtemps qu'il ne lui étaient apparus.

Des pensées inexprimables s'amoncelérent ainsi en lui toute la journée

Comme le soleil déclinait au couchant, allongeant sur le sol l'ombre du moindre caillou, Jean Valjean était assis derriére un buisson dans une grande plaine rousse absolument déserte. Il n'y avait a l'horizon que les Alpes. Pas même le clocher d'un village lointain. Jean Valjean pouvait étre á trois lieues de D.—Un sentier qui coupait la plaine passait á quelques pas du buisson.

Au milieu de cette meditation qui n'eút pas peu contribué á rendre ses haillons effrayans pour quelqu'un qui l'eût rencontré, il entendit un bruit joyeux.

Il tourna la téte, et vit venir par le sentier un petit savoyard d'une dixaine d'années qui chantait, sa vielle au flanc et sa hoite á marmotte sur le dos.

Un de ces doux et gais enfants qui vont de pays en pays, laissant voir leurs genoux par les trous de leur pantalon.

Tout en chantant l'enfant interrompait de temps en temps sa marche et jouait aux osselets avec quelques piéces de monnaie qu'il avait dans sa main, toute sa fortune probablement. Parmi cette monnaie, il y avait une piéce de quarante sols.

L'enfant s'arréta á coté du buisson sans voir Jean Valjean et fit sauter sa poignée de sous que jusque lá il avait reçue avec assez d'adresse tout entiére sur le dos de sa main.

Cette fois la piéce de quarante sous lui échappa, et vint rouler vers la broussaille jusqu'á Jean Valjean.

Jean Valjean posa le pied dessus.

Cependant l'enfant avait suivi sa piece du regard, et l'avait vu.

Il ne s'étonna point et marcha droit a l'homme.

C'était un lieu absolument solitaire. Aussi loin que le regard pouvait s'étendre, il n'y avait persone dans la plaine ni dans le sentier. On n'entendait que les petits cris faibles d'une nuée d'oiseaux de passage qui traversaient le ciel a une hauteur immense. L'enfant tournait le dos au soleil qui lui mettait des fils d'or dans les cheveux et qui empourprait d'une lueur sanglante la face sauvage de Jean Valjean

No Sheep-Farmer should be without it.

This valuable preparation which is now used by nearly all the wool growers of this country, is a concentrated extract, one pound of which is equal to ten pounds of tobacco, retaining in this compact form all the properties of the raw material. The only labor required to render the wash ready for use, is, to stir the paste into the quantity of cold water, needed for the number of sheep to be cured.

The most satisfactory recommendations of its perfect safety, simplicity and utility, from the principal Estancieros of this contry may be had on application to the undersigned. Full directions for use are given on each tin.
